TEACHING

Non-Credit Instruction

Library Collection Development, Library. (June 1, 2022 - May 31, 2023).

Librarians take an active role in collection development to acquire and maintain materials necessary to support the teaching and learning needs of the UWL community. Within their collection development subject areas, activities may include identifying, evaluating, selecting, and deselecting materials for the library's general collection. Subject areas: Chemistry, Computer Science, Health Professions, Mathematics/Statistics, Physics, Political Science and Public Administration, Public Health and Community Health Education

Library Instruction, 691 participants, Library. (June 1, 2022 - May 31, 2023).

Librarians teach information literacy to UWL students via face-to-face and online instruction. Modes of delivery may include one-shot instruction sessions, credit-bearing courses, and partnering with campus faculty in an embedded librarian model.

Library Reference Desk, Library. (June 1, 2022 - May 31, 2023).

Librarians staff a service point for on-demand information research assistance incorporating teaching and learning to UWL students, faculty, staff, and visitors. Modalities may include in-person, telephone, email, Chat, or videoconference. During fall semester 2022 I was scheduled for 6 hours/week, plus 3 hours/week in Special Collections. I was scheduled to cover reference for 1 week during winter session 2023. During spring semester 2023 I was scheduled for 2 hours/week, plus 3 hours/week in Special Collections.
